

COVID in kids- the new inflammatory syndrome

Photo by Lexi Logan

It's hard to believe that COVID 19 did not pop onto our radar until just a few short months ago. As a result, new information about the disease is constantly evolving. Today, we join health writer Kelley Heyworth at Mommypoppins.com in this briefing on COVID and the newly described inflammatory syndrome in kids. Read here about this little understood COVID syndrome.

Julie Kardos, MD and Naline Lai, MD
©2020 Two Peds in a Pod®